Michelle Bachman . . . Sarah Palin . . . these women are writing a completely new chapter in the history of women in American politics.

What Michelle is doing is absolutely heroic.

This may be the most exciting time in American history in 50 years. You can feel the electricity in the air.

Michelle is going to lead a troop of Americans to Pelosi's office in the Capitol. Amazing.

I prefer Michelle to Sarah to be honest.

I just posted the following message in a different thread on this group.

TPP is doing things in DC this week. We have been planning it all week long. An announcement will go on Sunday. Stay tuned until then. If you can be in DC this week and did not respond to our call for volunteers, then please email Diana Reimer or Debbie Dooley.

diana reimer philatppatriots@gmail.com
Debbie Dooley debbie0040@yahoo.com

Again, our announcement will go out on Sunday. I'm working to expand our plans to cover Thursday as well to coincide with Congressman Bachman.

Plus we have announcement that will go out on Monday or Tuesday on another project we are launching.

Things are happening because of you guys! It is incredible to see ideas and suggestions be made, then people step up to the plate to work tirelessly to turn the ideas into reality. It is a pleasure to work with such a dedicated group of Americans.

Have a great day!

Regarding Michele Bachmann's HJR 41, that is an exercise in constitutional incompetence. Posturing. The issue, properly framed, is not "currency", but "legal tender". It is already unconstitutional for states to make anything but gold or silver coin legal tender on state territory, and Congress has no power to legislate legal tender on anything but territory under its exclusive jurisdiction, such as federal enclaves (Art. I Sec. 8 Cl. 17) and incorporated non-state territories (Art. IV Sec. 3 Cl. 2). They do it anyway. An appropriately worded amendment would be one like mine, but like any amendment, it is not enough to get it ratified unless it is with massive public support, because it would otherwise just be ignored.

So I take it you dont support her request to meet on Thurs in DC to tell congress we are against socialization or the fact that she stated the Bill is Unconstitutional because the government cant force citizens to purchase a product or service.
Is that correct?

No, she's apparently okay about that (from what I can see from this distance). I was just pointing out that even the good guys in Congress often get it wrong when they try to address constitutional issues. The constitutionality of federal health care is more clear to her than, apparently, something like legal tender.

An example of that was a bill by Ron Paul that would have delegated to the President the authority to issue letters of marque and reprisal. Only Congress can do that -- and only directly. They could issue such letters to the President (and forces under his command), but not delegate the power to him to issue them. (I realize there was a precedent for that during the War of 1812, but they got it wrong then, too.) It would be nice if our champions were constitutionally competent.

Please watch your email for the TPP announcement. This is something that has never been done to our knowledge. It will go quite well with MB idea. If it was, her idea. Just remember that surprise is the element to victory. That is the reason the TPP Operation is not going out till Sunday. We have been working on it for two weeks and putting it in place the past week or so. Thanks
